Donald Trump looking to overhaul White House team

He is frustrated by its inability to contain the Russia crisis
 U.S. President Donald Trump is considering overhauling his White House staff and bringing back top campaign strategists, frustrated by what he views as his team's inability to contain the burgeoning crisis involving alleged Russian meddling in the 2016 election.
 Expanding teams of lawyers and experienced public relations hands are being recruited to deal with the drumbeat of new revelations about Moscow's interference and possible improper dealings with the Trump campaign and associates. The disclosures dogged the president during his first trip abroad since taking office and threaten to overwhelm and stall the agenda for his young administration.

'Prospects for 2018 brighter than ever'

Real Estate Regulation Act, GST to combine with REITs to boost investor confidence in the sector
 The various steps taken by the Centre including the introduction of Real Estate Regulation Act (RERA) and the Goods and Services Tax (GST) along with Real Estate Investment Trusts (REITs) will help improve transparency in the long run and thus increase investor confidence in the real estate sector, Anshuman Magazine , Chairman, India and South East Asia, CBRE, said in an interview. While 2017 would be the year of consolidation, the sector's growth prospects for 2018 would be 'brighter than ever' as the impact of the regulations would unfold throughout this year. Edited excerpts:
 You have been active in the Indian real estate sector for over two decades, what are the radical changes you have witnessed and how do you evaluate them?
